AN EXPERT ON KILRAIN

THE MARQUIS OF QUEENSBERRY TALKS OF THE KILRAIN-SMITH FIGHT.

His Sympathies were with the Englishman, Smith, but He Bet with His Judgment on Kilrain, who Showed Himself to be Clever

The Marquis of Queensberry has been in the city for several weeks, on his way home after an absence of eight months on a voyage imost around the world. He has visited Australia and California, and proposes to sail for home on Saturday. Meanwhile he will, if possible, be present at the Dempsey-Donovan boxing match in Brooklyn on Thursday evening. Yesterday he went to the office of the Police Gazette and had a chat with Richard K. Fox in the midst of Mr. Fox's museum of belts, tro-He is of medium height and weighs about 150 s almost jet black. with the merest sprinkling of gray. His eyebrows are very heavy and trimmed side whiskers. His skin is ruddy, and he is the picture of good health. He was dressed n a frock coat, dark waistcoat, displaying a heavy gold chain, and striped trousers of the atest and most pronounced stripe. He wore a standing collar with the points turned over, and a four-in-hand black slik neck scarf just a collar same as above, pints, at 45 cents; bought by C. S. Dawson. little behind the fashion, and a neat scarf pin. He speaks with a very fluent, rapid utterance. and is a very free and easy conversationalist, and is a very free and easy conversationalist, enthusiastic on sporting points, and with very decided opinions, which he is by no means afraid to express.

A knot of reporters gathered in Mr. Fox's office to meet the Marquis. He smoked one of Mr. Fox's cigars with evident pleasure.

You were present at the Smith-Kilrain fight, Marquis." said Mr. Fox, deferentially. "Burely. I do not see how they could have stood up longer. They actually fought ten rounds by meonlight. They could not keep up that sort of thing, you know."

But the opinion has been expressed here that it was not a fair fight."

Oh, yes; that opinion was also expressed in England, but not justif. I think, by any one who saw the fight.

If was said that Mitchell held Kilrain back."

Yee, it seemed to me that he did. I thought the fight could have been continued the result would have been different—that Kilrain might have won."

"You bet on Kilrain, did you not?"

"Yes. They were putting very heavy odds on Smith. I thought they were putting too heavy odds on him. so I bet on Kilrain. But I wanted Smith to win."

"Were not the sympathies of the spectators against Kilrain?"

"Yes: so much so that when I went in the ring I went over to Kilrain's side, so that he should not appear so lonely, don't you see. I did not like to see him so much alone. But after that, when they saw what a good fighter he was there was no need of my remaining thers. I went over to Smith's side, for I wanted him to win."

"Aithough you bet your money on Kilrain?"

"Ites: I was willing to lose my money. I was betting on my judgment and not on my sympathy."

"Then you did judgs Kilrain to be a surpathy."

"Then you did judge Kilrain to be a sunerior man?"

"Then you did judge Kilrain to be a superior man?"

"Yes: I judged that from seeing him spar before the fight. I thought our people were too confident as to Smith."

"How about the punishment?"

"Smith was the most gamy man I ever saw. He withstood the most terrific assault. The blow that Kilrain gave him in the fifty-ninth round was terrible. I thought Smith was done up. I turned away thinking the fight was over. But Smith recovered with marvellous staying power. No one could have foreseen that he would withstand such punishment."

"Then you think that Kilrain was waiting to tire Smith out before finishing him up?"

"Surely. It was plain that he was holding off by Mitchell's orders. It seemed to me that he appeared to be sorry to be obliged to hit Smith so hard."

"Do you think it was sure that Kilrain would have won if the fight had been prolonged?"

"Well. I could hardly say that. Smith developed wonderfully effective staying powers, although he did not strike very effective blows. Yet both men were pretty well done up."

"You do not think the fight should have gone on?"

"Well. I do not see how it could have gone "

"Well. I do not see how it could have gone on longer."
"What do you think will be the effect of that fight on pugilism in England?"
Well. I think we are more favorable to box-

Well. I think wa are more favorable to boxing than fighting."

"What is your opinion of Sullivan?"

"I do not care to strike a man when he is down. I confess I do not like the man. It has appeared to me that he was inclined to brag. He is a boxer, and not a fighter, judging by his record. It was a great thing for Mitchell to stand up before him as he did."

"How about the Marquis of Queensberry rules that bear your name."

"Those rules were got up mainly when I was at Cambridge, about 23 years ago. I took a great interest in boxing then, and held the light-weight championship for two years. Those rules are for boxing, and not for fighting. There was nothing of the kind when I prepared them, and they were at once accepted as a guide for such contests, and have stood the test of time very well. But it should be borne in mind that the Marquis of Queensberry rules are specially designed for boxing matches, and not for lights."

"Shall you visit any boxing matches in this country."

"I hope to be able to attend the Dempsey-country?"

"I hope to be able to attend the Dempsey-Donovan match on Thursday. Mr. Fox has invited me, and if I can get through dinner in time I shall go. I am to dine with Col. Bob Inzersoil that evening, and suppose we shall get through dinner in time. I had an engagement to dine, with Mr. Mackey, and he may like to go, too."

ment to dine with Mr. Mackey, and he may like to go, too."

"How about Kiirain's behavior in England?"

"He seemed to me to behave with becoming modesty. I had him and Mitchell to dine with me, and I was favorably impressed with Kiirain's manner. I formed a high opinion of his merits as a lighter."

"You do not think he was unfairly treated in the Smith-Kiirain fight?"

"Certainly not; and I do not think that any first-class judge who saw the fight would say it was not fair. The result was owing to Smith's marvellous power of recuperation. I do not think any other man could have recovered from that blow in the fifty-ninth round that Kiirain gave him."

Beath of a Popular Song Writer. J. F. Mitchell, a writer of many popular ballads, died on Monday in St. Vincent's Hos-pital, where he had been placed by the Actors' Fund. He was an Englishman, probably 35 years old, and had made money and repute on years old, and had made money and repute on the other side before he came to this country, five or six years ago. He was a most prolific composer, and over one bundred songs bear his name. "The Extle's Lamout" is still sung far and near. "Her Own Boy Jack. "A Letter from Ireland." and "There Never Was a Coward Where the Bhamrock Grows' have been heard in all the vaudevilles here and in England. Mr. Mitchell was a well-known figure in Union square at the music stores.

Election Marshals Must Walt.

Attorney-General Garland has decided that United States special deputy marshals who served at the recent election must wait for their pay until Congress gets ready to furnish the money. United States Marshal McMahon the money. United States Marshal McMahon has put in a bill for $49,100 for the deputies: pay and other expenses. Mr. Garland says:

"If advances are made to Marshals to pay the expenses of special deputies, there will not be any money left for service of process for the courts. It is therefore deemed expedient to withhold the payment of those special deputies until Congress shall appropriate for their payment."

Charles Withons, an old boatman, whose some is in Halifax, struck this town about election time. He had a glorious time drinkelection time. He had a giorious time drink-ing campaign whiskey. He is now confined in Bellevue Hospital, a sad-looking wre. k. His eyes are blackened, his shoulder is dislocated, and his head is abnormally swollen. The doctors expect to have him in good re-pair in a couple of weeks.

MR. TILDEN'S WINES SOLD. The Champagnes Went at Low Prices and the Steinberger Cabinet High,

Many old New Yorkers and many men about town who are judges of good wines were present at Wetmore's auction rooms yesterday afternoon at the sale of the wines and liquers belonging to the estate of the late Samuel J. Tilden. The prices obtained were fair. The cobwebs on the bottles had been carefully preserved and the attendants handled them as places without warning. One bottle out of each lot had been opened, and the big men who sat in the front seats did some extensive sampling. Hard crackers and cheese, also said to have been a portion of the Governor's estate, were set out in bowls on a table. Ward McAllister was an interested spectator. The Marquis looked like a comfortable banker. He did not buy, but had frequent consultations with others. The sale was in accordance with the orders of the executors. There were thirtysounds. He looks about 45 years old. His half | two lots, including champagnes, burgundles. Rhine wines, Madeiras, clarets, whiskies, brandles, and gin. The champagnes went at very low prices and were bought mainly by dealers; but there was a spirited contest when 5 bottles Glealer, extra super dry, quarts, at 60 cents (the bottles were leaky); bought by Mr. Kaufman, a

He returned under her care, and they have gone to Orange, N. J., where the comedian will rest. W. J. Scanlan, the Irish comedian, one of Augustus Pitou's stars, is quite ill at New Orleans. A telegram received in this city last night says that he has missed, several performances at the St. Charles. Theatre there, and the house is closed in consequence. Mr. Scanlan is receiving the attention of skilful surgeons.

David Paige, a colored resident of 942 Third avenue, was held by Justice O'Reilly in the Yorkville Court yesterday to answer a charge of breaking into the cellar of 136 East Fifty-sixth street and stealing a lock valued at 50 cents off a coal bin door. The accused says he is assistant sexton of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, and that while he was janitor at 136 East Fifty-sixth street he put the lock on the door, and thought he had a right to go back and take it. Emelia Fox says the lock is hers.

The body of Edward Palmer lay in the Morgue yesterday. He died on Randall's Island on last Saturday, a prisoner charged with intoxication. He was 48 years of age. During the late war be was Paymaster in the United States Navy. A friend, Thomas Calles of 143 East Forty-fifth street, will see that the body receives decent burial.
